

FINE REPUBLICAN RALLY HELD HERE FRIDAY EVENING

THREE LOCAL BOYS CONFESS MISCHIEF AT SCHOOL HOUSES

Are Held for Hearing on Charge of Malicious Mischief Monday.

Three youths taken in custody last evening have admitted breaking into two school houses in this vicinity last Saturday night and doing several hundred dollars worth of damage as well as to stealing a quantity of gasoline, all "because they wanted something to do." Elwood Heatherington, aged 20, his brother Cecil Heatherington, aged 17, and Emanuel "Manny" May, aged 19, were taken in custody late yesterday afternoon and are now confined in the county jail in default of $500 bonds each. Information charging the trio with malicious mischief and the breaking, entering and destroying of school property has been filed in the county court by Sheriff Elbert C. Risley.

Early yesterday it was reported that two boys residing in Grand Detour had knowledge of the Bend school depredations on last Saturday night. This information was sent to Sheriff Sherd Dodson and his chief deputy, George Banning at Oregon, and as a result of the investigation at 5 o'clock last evening the three culprits were under arrest. The Ogle county authorities working with Chief Van Bibber took them in custody here and they were taken to the police station and questioned. Neither of the three denied the act and made a clear statement of their actions of last Saturday evening.

Said to Have Confessed.

Leaving Dixon in a Ford touring car belonging to May about 9 o'clock, the police say they admitted they stopped at the Bend school on the River road in front of the school, and after breaking a rear window, opened the door and entered. They then overturned desks, emptied them of their contents, broke some of the school furniture and also threw rocks through several panes of glass.

They then went east and sopped at Lehman's White Rock cottages, their confession says, where they purchased two gallons of gasoline. While Mr. Lehman was absent, they admitted, it is said, having stolen these more gallons of oil and then proceeded to the Ogle county school in Ogle county.

Here they parked their car and effected an entrance, where they broke up school furniture, desks, book cases, several panes of glass, wrote obscene matter on the blackboards, and destroyed an exhibit of basketry which the pupils of the school were making for presents.

Awful Disorder.

"It was the worst looking place I have ever seen," said Chief Deputy George Banning last evening. He was called to investigate the Kingdom school about Monday morning. "If these boys had said that they had been drinking, I would think different of it, but when they deny having drunk a drop and then carried on this wilful destruction of property, I am at a loss to understand what kind of boys they are."

Justice Grover W. Gehant and State's Attorney Mark C. Keller were called to the police station and warrants were signed by Sheriff Risley. The bonds were fixed at $500 each, which none of the trio could furnish. County Judge John B. Crabtree was in Chicago today and their cases were continued until Monday. It is understood that they will be arrested and taken to Ogle county when their sentence here is completed.

Freeprot Slayer is Today's Feature Race

William "Pouly" Jones, colored, for whom the police of northern Illinois have been searching since early Thursday evening for the murder of his divorced wife at Freeport, was located and arrested about 5 o'clock last evening, according to word received by Chief Van Bibber from Chief Donald of Freeport. Jones, it was said, was found in a corn field a short distance from Freeport late yesterday afternoon, where he was hiding. He offered no resistance when the officers closed in on him and was taken to the city jail.

Boy Killed in Fall Off Cliff at Starved Rock

Galesburg, Ill., Oct. 11.—Wesley Rogers, 14, of Yates City, near here, was killed when he fell 100 feet from one of the cliffs at Starved Rock last evening, according to word received by his parents. Wesley was camping at the rock with a group of Boy Scouts, in which he had just qualified as a tenderfoot. "The boy was instantly killed when he struck the rock below the cliff."

Navy Day to be Observed Throughout Land, Oct. 27

Washington, Oct. 11.—Plans for observance of Oct. 27 as Navy Day, with a program of ceremonies in the various cities at the towns and monuments of the nation's naval heroes, radio messages and other features to emphasize the significance of the day, were announced today by the Navy league of the United States.

Weather Prophets of Dixon Disagree on Duration of Warmth

Ben Snyder made the remark last evening that we would have this delightful weather until the middle of November, that he could tell by certain signs. This morning Joe Staples said that Ben did not know how to gauge it at all, that we would continue to have this weather till January first.

SPRING VALLEY FANS TO COME WITH WILDCATS

Dixon Legion Faces Hardest Game Tomorrow P. M.

Johnny Downs will be out of the lineup tomorrow afternoon when the Dixon Legion football team faces their strongest opposition of this season, the Spring Valley Wild Cats. Downs is suffering from an injured toe and Coach Risley has ordered him to rest up for a week at least in order that the member might heal.

Captain Gus Wimpelberg will be at Downs' position with Wise balancing the other end. Cone will be in the backfield calling signals. Even though the team has but two cripples, Coach Risley anticipates the hardest game of the present season and one of the worst battles of the schedule.

It is known that the Wild Cats will bring along a delegation of fans from their locality and it has been arranged to have the Dixon Legion Band at the field to furnish a short concert before the game and between the periods. The game will be called at promptly 2:30.

Boys to Attend Church Services at Baptist

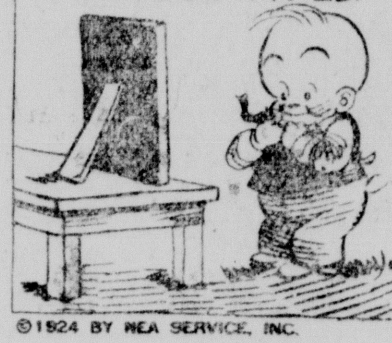

One of the boys' clubs and also the boys' band of the Y. M. C. A. have been invited to attend services at the Baptist church Sunday evening. These two boys organizations will attend in a body and seats will be reserved for them. There will be special music and Dr. Lamkin will preach a special sermon on "The Possibilities of the Boy." This will be an important service for the boys of Dixon, and should be largely attended by not only these clubs but also by boys outside the city of Dixon.

Four Dixon Lads Fined in Morrison Yesterday

Ned Wallace, John Hasselman, Jr., Theodore Hasselman and Frank Teeter, all of this city, were taken in custody yesterday afternoon by Chief Van Bibber and turned over to Deputy Sheriff Kelly of Whiteside county who took them to Morrison. The quartette were charged with having failed to pay damages on an automobile which they rented about July 16, and wrecked south of Rock Falls. They returned home last night, having been fined $10 and costs.

HEAD DETECTIVES EXPECTED TO SHOW LINCOLN IS SANE

Battle Over Murderer's Mental Condition Continues Today.

By Associated Press Leased Wire

Geneva, Ill., Oct. 11.—Adolph Wirz, chief of detectives of the Aurora police department, will be placed on the witness stand in the Kane County Circuit Court Monday to offset Chief of Police Frank Michels' testimony that Warren J. Lincoln is insane. Lincoln made his first confession to Detective Wirz; one in which he said he slew his wife with a poker in self defense after she had shot and killed her brother Byron Shoup in Lincoln's presence. Days after this confession Lincoln admitted to Chief Michels that he had killed his wife and her brother and placed their heads in a block of concrete.

Besides Chief of Detectives Wirz, according to announcement by State's Attorney Charles Abbott, there will be seven other lay witnesses for the prosecution and three alienists, Dr. R. H. Hinton, superintendent of the State Hospital for the Insane at Elgin; Dr. J. H. Gahagan, superintendent of Mercyville Sanitarium, Aurora, and Dr. Raymond F. Dowell, a medical expert from Chicago. Doctors Minton and Gahagan, examined Lincoln after he was arrested on the charge of murder. Dr. Dowell has observed him since. The three have watched Lincoln closely during the present hearing and made copious notes when alienists, including Dr. Harry H. Hulbert, a prominent figure in the defense of Nathan Leopold, Jr. and Richard Loeb, were testifying.

The defense closed its case yesterday with Dr. Hulbert's testimony. When they did not put Lincoln on the stand State's Attorney Abbott attempted to have Judge John K. Newhall call the defendant as a court witness but the judge denied the motion on the grounds that a defendant could not be compelled to testify against himself.

To Hear Complaints of Dixon Firms on Freight Rates on Coal Shipments

Springfield, Ill., Oct. 11.—The Illinois Commerce Commission today set for hearing in Chicago next Wednesday, before the entire commission, the complaint of the Sandusky Cement Co., The Borden Co., Reynolds Wire Co. and Distilled Water Ice Co. of Dixon, against the Illinois Central and other railroads on rates charged on shipments of coal from Springfield and mines in southern Illinois to Dixon.

The commission also assigned Commissioner Moynihan to hear the petition of the Illinois Northern Utilities Co. for authority to construct and operate an electric transmission line from Freeport to Cedarville and to operate in Cedarville. The hearing on the petition will be held in Chicago next Tuesday.

Bandits Lined Up Train Men and Murdered Them

El Paso, Tex., Oct. 11.—B. F. Barker, of El Paso, and eight other men were lined up and shot to death Thursday by bandits, who wrecked a freight train of the Chihuahua & Orient Railway, southwest of Juarez, in a $15,000 payroll holdup.

The amount taken in the robbery has not yet been verified. A customs guard, Manuel Ortega, of Juarez, the only man on the train who was armed, is missing. It is believed he also was slain.

A rail had been removed from a curve in the track where trains run slowly. The engine, tender and a box car loaded with dynamite, left the track.

Dixon Folks Will Fly in Plane to Hampton, Iowa

Wilson McClannahan and Miss Ethel Tyler are planning to fly to Hampton, Iowa, Sunday where they will visit the parents of Miss Tyler. They expect to cover the distance of two hundred miles in a little over two hours. By going by air they will be able to make a trip and visit in one day that would otherwise take several days.

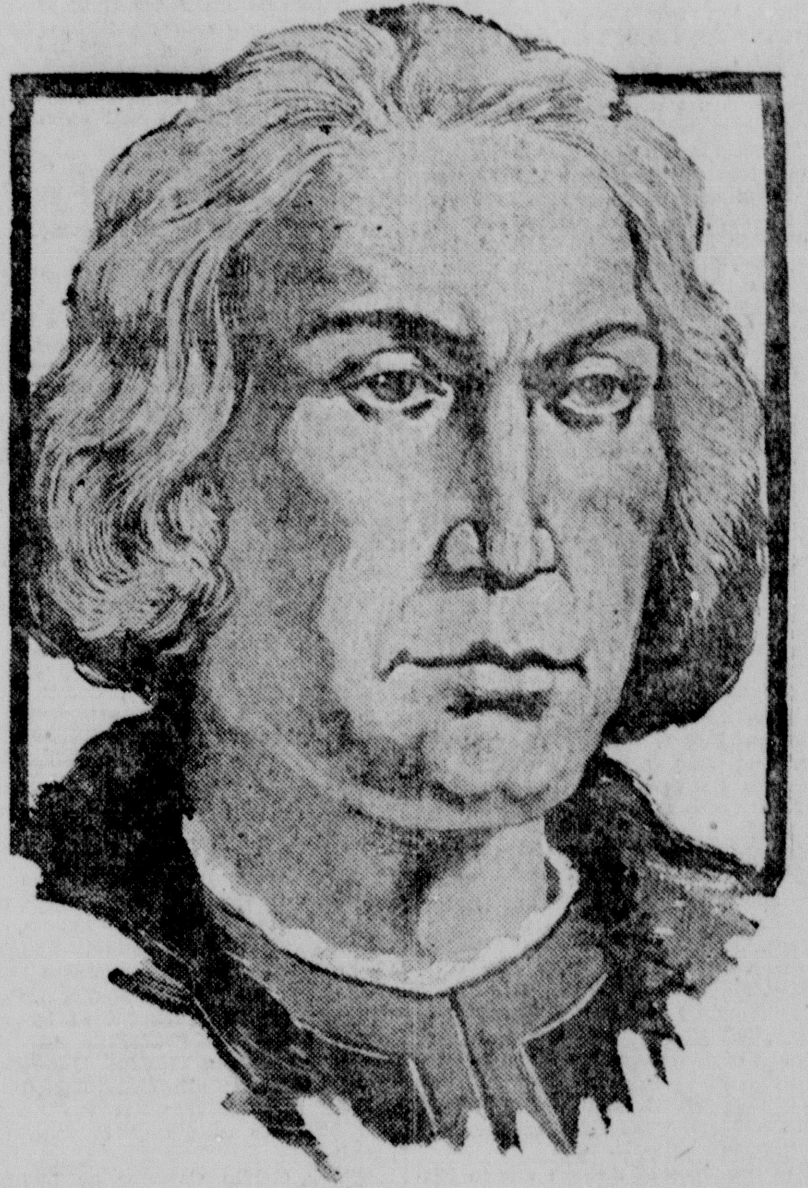

Oregon Hotel Man Has Taken Over "Biltmore"

H. J. Mosher, formerly proprietor of the Oregon hotel, on October 1 took over the Biltmore Hotel of this city and will conduct it in the future. Mr. Mosher will have the interior of the hotel remodeled and redecorated and made inviting for patronage.

Dinner-Dance for Wales in Chicago Monday Eve

Chicago, Oct. 11.—A dinner dance, probably followed by dancing with Volcott Blair as host, will conclude the visit of the Prince of Wales here Monday. The guest list and location of the party, which will extend up to the time the royal visitor entrains for Detroit shortly after midnight, have not been arranged. Mr. Blair said.

CHRISTOPHER COLUMBUS

The life of Christopher Columbus is a story of faith.

It is a beautiful story, as history recites, because it is filled with trust of men and brave confidence in self. Perhaps faith came easily to Columbus because he was deeply religious by nature.

But it was a gift that served him in good stead.

It handed down his name to posterity as discoverer of the New World.

Lasting Faith.

Faith at the outset enabled him to brave the wise men of his time and tell them that the world was round when they believed it flat.

Faith it was that girded him with fortitude when twice on the outward voyage a mutinous and terrified crew made ready to cast him overboard.

Land had not been sighted and the sailors grew afraid.

They had been taught that on the edge of the horizon was a precipice and that any ship venturing near the edge would plunge off into limitless space.

Still, Faith.

Through his faith, Columbus stilled their fears. He changed his course to south then and on the morning of Oct. 12, 1492, the island of San Salvador hove in view.

Columbus was born a poor boy in the city of Genoa, Italy, some time between Aug. 26, 1451, and Oct. 31 of the same year. Confused accounts

Young Woman is Found Dead in Hotel Room

Chicago, Oct. 11.—A young woman about 25 years old, who registered at a west side hotel as "Helen Durand," was found dead today in her room, apparently a suicide by poison. A letter, the contents of which was not divulged, but said to refer to a parole prisoner and to Springfield, Illinois, was found by the police.

The letter was unsigned and was addressed to William Burkhardt, New Leland Hotel, Springfield, Illinois, "asking him to see" Judge Jenkins about getting "parole papers for Luke Ward."

Photographs of "Lottie Ward" believed by the police to have been the woman herself and Luke Ward, and a wedding ring, were found in the room.

Dawes Compares Movement for Bob to Prairie Fire

Omaha, Neb., Oct. 11.—Declaring that "the time to stop a prairie fire is when it starts," Charles G. Dawes, republican candidate for vice president, invaded Kansas today to continue his assault on the LaFollette independent movement.

Mr. Dawes referred to the LaFollette candidacy as a "prairie fire" in an address here last night, before an audience that filled the city auditorium where previously in the campaign John W. Davis, the democratic presidential candidate and Senator Wheeler, the independent nominee for vice president had spoken.

Thirty-five Injured in Ohio Traction Wreck

Youngstown, O., Oct. 11.—Thirty-five persons were injured, ten seriously when two interurban cars crashed head on in a fog near Struthers, Ohio, today.

John Hutton of Sterling spent Friday in Dixon.

He made the exact date uncertain.

His father's name was Domenico Colombo, who was a weaver by trade. And the maiden name of his mother was Susanna Fontanarosa.

Up until 1472 Columbus followed in the business of his father.

He had neither university instruction nor was he at any time a navigator during his youth.

Family of Artisans

All of the family were artisans. Columbus came into the world with nothing but a strong, clean body, honest parents and his faith.

He is last heard of as having permanent residence in Italy on Aug. 7, 1473. Followed several trips in merchantmen to England and once almost to Iceland.

During 1477-78 he was engaged in commerce in Lisbon and in 1479 married one Felipa Moniz Perestrelo of the same city, who bore him a son whom he called Diego.

All the while he was working on his new theory of a round world and lands undreamed of beyond the setting sun.

Queen Gave Jewel

It is a matter of history how Queen Isabella gave him her jewels with which he equipped his three tiny vessels, the Nina, the Pinta and the Santa Maria.

Setting sail from Palos, Aug. 3, 1492, he proved his convictions, brought glory to the crown of Spain and happiness to mankind. This all happened because he had faith.

Fans Ask Coolidge to Dine World Champions

Washington, Oct. 11.—President Coolidge who helped cheer the Washington Senators on to victory yesterday, received almost as many telegrams of rejoicing today as did Bucky Harris.

"Wouldn't it be wonderful if you would dine Washington team at White House," wired O. R. Largent of Flint, Michigan.

"What do you think of Bucky Harris as a show is Walter?" asked Buddy Elders of San Antonio, Texas.

A. L. Oppenheimer of Cleveland, wired Mr. Coolidge that "The Senators' success is a forerunner of your own election, and suggest that you, as their mascot, tender them a dinner."

Ex-President is Ill.

Washington, Oct. 11.—Chief Justice Taft was prevented by illness today from attending the regular Saturday conference of the justices of the Supreme Court.

DELAY IN DIVORCE SAID TO BE CAUSE ROCHELLE SHOOTING

Man with Estranged Wife When Hubby Came Home, Alleged Situation.

Delay in the granting of a petition for divorce is said to have been the cause of the shooting at Rochelle Wednesday night, as was mentioned in last evening's Telegraph, and which resulted in William Martin and Mrs. William Lamb being held to the Ogle county grand jury as the result of injury received by William Lamb, also of Rochelle.

Officials keep the affair from the newspapers until Friday while they conducted an investigation.

Lamb had sued for a divorce from his wife and was to have a hearing during the present session of circuit court at Oregon. Martin is charged in the petition of having been intimate with Mrs. Lamb, according to the police.

Finds Wife With Martin.

Rad blood has been apparent between the two men for some time and on Wednesday night when Lamb came home from work at the canning factory in Rochelle, he found his wife absent. Later she is said to have returned accompanied by Martin.

An argument ensued and Lamb is alleged to have picked up a piece of gas pipe and made an effort to attack his wife's companion. Martin then drew a gun and fired several shots, one of which entered Lamb's shoulder.

The wife is alleged to have held her husband's arm so that he could not strike back at his assailant.

Ignorant of Wound

Officer Ambrose Hodge, Rochelle, was summoned by neighbors, and placed Martin under arrest. Lamb, when questioned by the police, is said to have been ignorant of the fact that a bullet had entered his body. Later he experienced a chill and a physician who was summoned ordered him to the hospital.

HAWAIIAN TRIP FOR DIRIGIBLE IS CONSIDERED

Shenandoah at San Diego After Long Journey.

By Associated Press Leased Wire
San Diego, Calif., Oct. 11.—Because of the rear cabin, which was smashed while the Shenandoah was being moored last night, after completing her trans-continental flight, and some needed repairs to her motors, the big dirigible will probably stay at her mooring mast at North Island all day today, according to word from the officer of the day at North Island, navy flying field.

An air trip to Hawaii may be the next test for the Shenandoah, according to Rear Admiral Moffett, head of the bureau of naval aeronautics. The big airship arrived here last night completing her successful trip across the continent.

Sweeping over Point Loma at 10:45 o'clock last night, the Shenandoah completed its westward flight at 11:49 o'clock when Commander Landa-downe brought his airship to a mooring mast on the landing field on North Island.

McCarroll Sent to Jail to Serve Out $100 Fine

Henry Carroll was taken to the county jail this morning in default of fines and costs on two charges preferred against him the first of the week. Attorney Brooks, representing McCarroll, entered pleas of guilty to charges of possession and transportation of intoxicating liquor and to a second charge of intoxication in police court this morning before Justice A. H. Hannekan.

The justice sentenced the defendant to pay a fine of $100 and costs on the first charge and $10 and costs on the second. McCarroll chose to serve the time in the county jail and was the 25th prisoner to be confined today.

VOTE STRAIGHT, GOSPEL GIVEN DIXON VOTERS

That's Theme of Talks by Republicans Here Friday Evening

A distinguished group of public men visited Dixon last evening and talked to a well filled auditorium of interested voters on the issues of the present political campaign in Illinois and in the nation. The party, composed of candidates for state office on the republican ticket, was headed by Col. Frank L. Smith, state chairman, and included Lieutenant Governor Fred E. Sterling, Secretary of State Louis L. Emmerson and Congressman-at-Large Henry R. Rathbone. The meeting was presided over in his usual able manner by County Chairman Harry Warner.

All the speakers asked for party allegiance and a straight ticket at the election Nov. 4, and they presented their convincing arguments why the republican party should be continued in power in state and nation.

Emmerson Popular
The first to be heard was Secretary of State Louis L. Emmerson, whose ever growing popularity with Dixon voters makes him a great figure in state politics. Mr. Emmerson told of the big swing around the state, undertaken by the caravan of Republican candidates, who have visited 13 congressional districts to date and have been accorded remarkably enthusiastic welcomes everywhere, all meetings taxing the capacity of the largest halls available. The Secretary predicted a majority of a half a million votes in Illinois for the Republican ticket.

Work of His Office

Concerning the work of his office Mr. Emmerson said:
I am just a little proud of the fact that every dollar of money for the building of hard roads has been produced, or will be produced in the end, by the Secretary of State's office.

The year before I took charge of the department the automobile fees amounted to only $1,200,000.

At the conferences in 1917, when the $50,000,000 bond issue was under consideration, it was estimated that the saturation point in automobiles would be reached in 1924 and that it might be possible to raise $5,000,000 in fees annually. On this the bond issue was predicted.

Figures Astonishing

What has followed is really astounding. The fees have grown from $1,200,000 not to $6,000,000 or $7,000,000, as we hoped, but to $10,000,000 last year, and they will reach about $11,500,000 this year. We not only can retire the $50,000,000 in bonds as they become due, but can also maintain the roads already built, and can construct many miles more.

"Every cent collected by the automobile department goes directly into the good roads fund. In this way the automobile owner gets immediate and direct value for every dollar he pays in license fees. The cost of maintaining the office is defrayed from the general revenue fund."

In this connection it is interesting to note that the automobile department of Illinois is operated at a smaller cost, on a basis of fees, than any similar department in the United States. Last year it cost less than four per cent of the fees collected for all the expenses of the office, including clerk hire, postage, the purchase of the plates and incidental expenses. On postage alone we save $25,000 a year by a ruling we obtained from the post office department, permitting us to enclose the certificate of registration with the plates.

One of the most effective things we have done toward increasing automobile fees has been the establishment of a force of automobile investigators who co-operate with local authorities throughout the state in enforcing the automobile laws. There are only a few of these investigators and each of them covers several counties. But by co-operation with local authorities and by showing up at unexpected times, they have been able to enforce almost a hundred per cent observance of the license law. You can all remember when automobiles without current licenses were very common in the streets and the highways, but an automobile without a license today is an exceedingly rare sight.

Made 2000 Arrests
The investigators in my office last year made more than 2000 arrests and warned over 30,000 drivers who were ignoring automobile or traffic laws. They are not only interested in collecting fees due the state, but they also assist in enforcing all of the laws of the road. I have always been interested in public safety measures, and have stressed, throughout my administration, the importance of obeying all traffic regulations.

So far as fees are concerned, I think it is safe to say that the investigators last year brought into the treasury at least a quarter of a million dollars.

Risley Will Have to Establish "Waiting List" for "Patrons"

This morning the register at Sheriff Risley's hotelery showed 28 names on the list. There were 26 enjoying the hospitality of the county's bawls up to last evening when Deputy Hill brought in another from near Lee Center and this morning Chief VanBibber added another to the list which brings the total number of prisoners up to the highest housed at one time. The cells will not begin to accommodate the inmates and both the male and female wards are filled, the prisoners sleeping on the store floors.

PAROLE OFFICER, KNOWN IN DIXON, SERIOUSLY HURT

Bert Carter in Mishap at Geneseo Early This Morning.

BULLETIN.
By Associated Press Leased Wire
Rock Island, Ill., Oct. 11.—Bert Carter, Illinois parole agent, may have been fatally injured in an automobile accident at Geneseo, 22 miles east of here, early this morning. Others less seriously hurt were John T. Campbell, superintendent of the Rock Island Free Employment Bureau; Evelyn Finkestein, his stenographer, and Frank Evans, state game warden.

The party was returning from Galesburg, where they had attended the Governor Small rally Friday afternoon. The car went off the hard road embankment.

LaFollette Confers With Western Managers Today

Chicago, Oct. 11.—(By the Associated Press.)—Facing the necessity of making a quick decision as to itinerary, Senator R. M. LaFollette, independent presidential candidate, arrived in Chicago today for conferences with his campaign managers and to deliver an address tonight.

The Wisconsin senator will remain here until tomorrow night. He is scheduled to speak Monday night at Kansas City. Continuing on his stumping tour he will visit St. Louis for a meeting Tuesday night, but beyond that point his itinerary is still unsettled.

The senator has definitely decided, however, to wind up his campaign in Cleveland the Saturday night before election.

Supporters of Mr. LaFollette escorted him to his headquarters here on his arrival from Cincinnati where he outlined his foreign policy in an address last night. The escort took the form of an automobile parade through downtown streets.

Rev. Case Will Continue Sermons on "Radicalism"

Tomorrow evening Prentiss Hovey Case of the Presbyterian church will continue his series of sermons on Radicalism that have been attracting so much attention.

His subject will be "The End of Radicalism's Road" and in this address he is to take up a little discussed and understood phase of the radical movement, its place in the eternal scheme of world events outlined in Biblical Prophecy.

To the student of the Bible this address will be of unusual interest and preparations are being made to care for an even larger congregation than has been filling the church every Sunday evening.

At the morning service the congregation will welcome the quartette, who will be in its place again.

Received Scalp Wound When Knocked Off Bike

John Phibbs, 522 Galena avenue, sustained a deep scalp wound and was bruised about the body when he was knocked off his bicycle at the corner of Fifth street and Galena avenue last evening about 6 o'clock. Mr. Phibbs was on his way home from his duties at the Sandusky cement plant and was riding his bicycle when an automobile driven by Ernest Gottell of South Dixon struck him. Mr. Phibbs was taken to the hospital at once where an examination disclosed the scalp wound as the most serious injury, he having sustained no broken bones. This morning he was reported to be resting as comfortably as could be expected.

tion dollars which would otherwise have escaped.

"While I am on the subject of fees, it may interest you to know that in addition to producing all of the money for the construction of the state system of roads, the Secretary of State's office contributes approximately $5,000,000 annually toward the expenses of the general state government. Up to the first of October we have collected a total of $15,725,000. Of this amount, $11,370,000 was automobile fees and $4,355,000 was corporation and miscellaneous fees. It is estimated that by the end of the year total collections will reach $15,000,000.

Prior to the beginning of this administration the total annual collections were only $1,800,000, of which less than $600,000 was in addition to the automobile fees.

"Results speak for themselves. Republican administrations in Illinois have built its roads, have enacted hundreds of progressive measures now on three statute books, have advanced the state's great institutions economically and humanely and have made a record which in itself is stronger than any platform could be."

Fred Sterling Talks.
Fred E. Sterling, who was born in Dixon and has many close friends in this city and vicinity, was the next speaker, and after telling how he learned to swim in Rock River down at the Old Elm, and greeting his staunch friends in Dixon, the Rockford editor who has become one of the strongest of Illinois political leaders explained how he attended the Democratic national convention which named John W. Davis as "prefers in bankruptcy for the Democratic party after 104 exhaustive ballots." Gov. Sterling said in part:

John W. Davis was nominated President by worn-out delegates in the Democratic convention, after the taking of 104 wearisome ballots, a compromise of exhaustion. Senator Robert M. LaFollette nominated himself and wrote his own platform. Calvin Coolidge was nominated by the people in direct primaries in the states, including Hiram Johnson's home state of California. There was nobody for Coolidge but the people and he owes allegiance only to the people.

Either Calvin Coolidge or Brother Charlie Bryan will be the next President of the United States.

If the election should be thrown into the House of Representatives, Illinois would have only one vote in it and no greater voice in the election than Arizona, New Mexico or any other of the smaller states.

A Presidential campaign based on nothing but fault-finding does not deserve to succeed.

This is a Presidential campaign of reason and the plain citizen is thinking in terms of arithmetic, rather than rhetoric of dollars rather than adjectives. He knows of the unparalleled accomplishments of the Harding-Coolidge administrations in the matter of war-debt and tax reductions. When Harding took office we had a war debt of 24 billions of dollars. That has been reduced more than three and a half billions, yet at the close of the fiscal year June 30th last there was over 500 millions of dollars more in the Treasury, the greatest surplus ever piled up. A Republican Congress caved by Democratic officials during the last two years of President Wilson's administration. The Harding-Coolidge administrations in three years reduced the government payroll by the discharge of 110,000 useless employees. It will take $6,000,000 a day less in taxes from the people in the year 1925 to meet the expenses of the government than it did in 1921, the year Harding took office.

Government through parties, instead of through individual men, is the best safeguard to our American institutions. There always has been and there always must be party responsibility in government.

If a strong, fearless, forceful fighter like Theodore Roosevelt abandoned the Progressive and rejoined the Republican party to

WORDS AND GRAMMAR

BY EVANGELINE WEED.
Director of Personality Institute,
Boston.

In the preceding lesson it was pointed out that one's expression of thoughts is an important part of one's personality. An important feature of expression is the use of words and grammar.

1. How many words do I know? If you are an average person your vocabulary is considerably less than 5000. Yet, the average dictionary—perhaps the sort you have in your home—contains 100,000 words or more. However, Shakespeare used only about 15,000 words, so if your usage reached 6,000 or 7,000 you would be well equipped to express yourself. You can easily ascertain your vocabulary strength by taking a dictionary, going through it with a pencil and marking those words that you use.

2. How may I increase my vocabulary? At least once a day, in reading or in conversation, you come across a word you would not use yourself. Look that word up. Learn it. Use it three times in conversation the next day. Every day add a word.

3. How may I learn of mistakes in word usage, grammar, pronunciation? There is only one way to learn anything and that is by study, but study need not be difficult. There are books on "words misused," "words mispronounced," and common mistakes in grammar." Go to your library and study them.

Few people realize how they abuse the language. For instance, many people do not know what an adverb is; consequently they use one and their language is frightful. Others are constantly using one word when they mean another. And still more mispronounce words.

Surprise for Jacob Renz, Sr.

A newspaper published at Donnellson, Ia., printed the following interesting account of a surprise for Jacob Renz, Sr., father of R. G. Renz of this city. The Renz family is one of the pioneer families in that section of the country coming originally from Germany. Mr. and Mrs. Renz from this city were in attendance at the celebration and reunion. The article published is as follows:

The home of Jacob Renz was the scene of a happy gathering Sunday, Sept. 28th, the occasion being a birthday surprise to celebrate his 70th birthday. Sixty-five relatives came with well-filled baskets.

A long table decorated with flowers and laden with good things to eat, served cafeteria style, was enjoyed by all who did justice to it. Those who had the pleasure of being present at this surprise given Mr. Renz were: Mr. and Mrs. R. G. Renz of Dixon, Ill., Mr. and Mrs. Charles Schwartzentruber of Charleston, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Passer and family of Ft. Madison, Mr. and Mrs. Emil Miller and family of Keokuk, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Pemberton of Keokuk, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Renz and baby of Charleston who had charge and planned this surprise, Mr. and Mrs. George Renz of Charleston, Mr. and Mrs. Ryon Klingler, Mr. and Mrs. John Klingler, Chas. Klingler, Mrs. George Klingler and family, Mr. and Mrs. Chris Schlicker and family, Mr. and Mrs. Ben Schlicker and baby, Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Dodson, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Klingler, Mr. and Mrs. Irwin Hirschler, Mr. and Mrs. Emil Hoyer and family, all of Donnellson, Mr. and Mrs. Edd Reuther and daughter, Lydia, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Reuther and family of Montrose, Mr. and Mrs. Victor Miller of Keokuk, Mr. and Mrs. Edd Loebner and Mrs. Kirchner of Kahoka, Mo.

Jacob Renz is a native of Charleston, Lee County, having lived at the present location all his life. A social time and good music was enjoyed by all. Everyone departed late in the day wishing Mr. Renz many happy returns.

HOUSEHOLD SUGGESTIONS—Do Not Starch.
When you put away muslins and linens they should be washed but not starched.

Always Wear Cap.
When sweeping or dusting wear a cap to protect your hair from the dust.

Level With Knife.
To measure a cupful of dry material, fill the cup with a spoon or scoop, and level off with a case knife.

Should Have Desk.
The housewife should have a businesslike desk for her records, papers, account books, as well as a place to sit and write when she does her day's planning and ordering.

Reception for Rev. Moore and Family
The members of the Methodist Episcopal church will give a reception for Rev. Aubrey Shannon Moore and family on Monday evening at 8 o'clock in the church parlors.

The church will be beautifully decorated in autumn colors and an excellent program of music and readings will be given.

The address of welcome will be given by Mayor F. D. Palmer.

Delicious refreshments will be served by the ladies of the church and a social hour will be spent in which all new members of the church will be made especially welcome and have an opportunity to become acquainted.

All friends of the Methodist church are especially invited.

This frock is of rich and lovely materials but very simple as to line and effect. Black is contrasted with printed velvet in very exotic shades of red and yellow. The front is very full and the back is very plain.

Held Party for Miss E. Jensen

Miss Elsie Jensen of Amboy was invited to the J. N. Garrett home Tuesday evening and went there supposing that she was to attend a card party. Arriving, she found a very large company there, for a card party, and about midway of the evening she was further surprised by being led into a room from which she had been excluded earlier, and set to work opening parcels. Each parcel contained a gift and a message of good will from some friend, and there were so many of them that it took her nearly two hours to get them all opened. Dainty refreshments were served by Mrs. Garrett and her assistants as soon as the task was completed.

Seventy-seven guests were present and spent a very pleasant evening. Many of the guests were members of the Green River Farmers' Club, which is considerably indebted to Miss Jensen for the services she has rendered during several years past in preparing programs for entertainment, taking part in them herself and training the younger members to do likewise.

This pleasant social affair was given in honor of Miss Jensen's approaching marriage to Harold July.

Amboy Women's Club in Meeting
The Amboy Women's Club resumed its year's work Monday, Oct. 6th, with an unusually large attendance.

As has been the custom for the past several years, the meetings are held in the Congregational church parlors.

Mrs. D. L. Bramer, the new president promises to be a most efficient and capable officer. In her welcoming address, she clearly and concisely outlined her plans for the year's work and then bade every officer and department head to feel the responsibility of her office and to assume its duties. Said Mrs. Bramer, "I expect to help and advise, if necessary, any department or committee, but I shall expect department heads and committee chairmen to take the responsibilities of their special work and to see that the work is carried out to the best of their ability."

The speaker of the afternoon was Miss Fanny Murphy, Past-President.

of the Phidian Art Club of Dixon. Miss Murphy has that rare talent of making her audience feel that they are not listening to an account of a past meeting, but are at the meeting itself, enjoying its various attractions. The next meeting of the club will be an evening meeting and is "Community Night." The community at large is invited. Dr. Paul F. Voelker is to be the speaker of the evening and Mr. Glenn McCracken will play. The date is Oct. 20th. Further notice will be given to the public.

W.M.S. Held October Meeting Tuesday

The W. M. S. of the Christian church held their October meeting with Mrs. Chas. Mumma of E. Everett Tuesday afternoon.

At this time the aims for the year of 1924-1925 were stated by Mrs. J. E. Reagan.

Mrs. Cleaver was in charge of the program for the afternoon which opened with the Golden Jubilee song. Mrs. Wells then read the 67th Psalm.

"Echoes of the Golden Jubilee" were read by Miss Lillie Cunningham. Mrs. Harry Stauffer gave an excellent report of the work of the Golden Jubilee in the local church.

One of the most enjoyable features of the afternoon was the reading of a letter from Mrs. A. S. Derr by Mrs. Reagan. Mrs. Derr and her husband are enjoying an automobile trip in the east. They expect to attend the International Convention of Disciples of Christ which will be held in Cleveland this month.

After the closing hymn the benediction was pronounced.

During the pleasant social hour which followed, tempting refreshments were served by Mrs. Emmert's division.

Miss Allene Huffman Happily Surprised

Miss Allene Huffman was happily surprised last evening by twelve friends who assisted her in celebrating her birthday.

She was entertained at the home of a relative for supper and on returning home was greeted by a company of friends who all joined in the gay spirit of the evening and made the gathering the success it proved to be.

The home was prettily decorated in pink and white garden flowers in these colors being used with ferns and autumn foliage.

A number of games were played, and "hearts" was one of the chief diversions, Miss Etta Remsburg winning the first prize and Miss Lillian Cunningham winning the second prize.

A dainty birthday luncheon was served in the dining room, where streamers in pink and white were festooned from the chandelier to the different places at the tables. The napkins were formed into pink and white rosebuds and the dainty favors were also pink.

During the luncheon Miss Huffman was presented with a lovely gift from the assembled friends, a hand painted clock with the best wishes of all. Miss Huffman expressed her great pleasure in receiving the gift.

It was late ere the company dispersed with many good wishes for future happy birthdays for Miss Allene.

EXPECTED HERE TODAY FOR VISIT—
Mrs. William Parrish of Downers Grove, and Mrs. Earl S. Prince and children of Rushville, Ill., were expected today for a visit with Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Prince. The guests are daughter, daughter-in-law and grand children of Mr. and Mrs. Prince.

RETURNS AFTER VISIT OF SEVERAL WEEKS—
Mrs. George S. Patrick left this morning for Chicago and from there leaves for her home in Houston, Tex., after a visit with relatives and friends in Dixon.

HONEYMOON

Portland Couple Spend Theirs Like Adam and Eve

Lowell Dunne and wife, Portland, Ore., took an economical honeymoon. Living in the wilderness for a week, with only a jack knife to provide their living, they won a bet that enabled them to buy all their household furniture. Mrs. Dunne is shown admiring one of the crawfish she caught to stave off starvation, while the husband is seen spearing a salmon.

What Is Perhaps the World's Record for Endurance Has Recently Been Made.

C. F. Franklin of the Howard Automobile Company, Pacific Coast Buick distributor, reports that he drove a new 1925 Standard Six Buick six teen hundred and six miles in less than fifty-five hours without leaving the driver's seat.

The record run was made from the Canadian border to the Mexican border, and establishes a speed record between these points.

Starting from Blaine, Canada, at 8 a. m. Monday, Sept. 22, Franklin made the sixteen hundred miles to Tijuana, Mexico without a relief driver and without leaving the wheel, arriving at Tijuana Wednesday, Sept. 24, at 2:40 p. m.

Sixteen hundred miles continuous driving is a feat that few would undertake, and in making this record Franklin certainly makes a strong bid for the hall of fame. The Buick Standard Six proved its stability by the wonderful manner in which it stood this extraordinary test. Not once did the car falter. The Buick Valve-in-Head motor which is built for power, speed and economy, was in perfect running order at the end of the long grind, and the gas consumption averaged better than eighteen miles to the gallon.

The fact that only one pint of water was needed to fill the radiator at the end of the trip indicates the efficiency of the Buick motor.

Official observers appointed by Los Angeles newspapers checked the trip from start to finish, and report that not once did the motor or car stop running.

Franklin says that only the perfect performance of the car and tires and the easy steering of the Buick made it possible for him to establish the new world's endurance record—Ad

HE WAS ALMOST PRESIDENT.

You remember that momentous night eight years ago when everyone thought Hughes had been elected president over Wilson.
Next day the public and politicians were at so sure.

The remote districts of California were still be heard from.
You recall how the country waited breathlessly day after day while those scattered
California votes were counted and reported.
Those few thousand scattered California votes turned the tide—elected Wilson instead Hughes.

If a few thousand Californians who voted and stayed away from the polls, Hughes could have gone into the White House.
How, then, can any one delude himself in-believing that his lone individual vote doesn't count much?

Vote without fail! Vote without fail! Vote
thout fail!
Your vote is needed! Your vote is need-
! Your vote is needed!

"GOD KNOWS."

It is not improbable that the bob-hair hantasy," as we alienists may be inclined call it, is a matter of cycles. In a spirit levity, it might even be said that it has all appearance of having been attained by plication of sickles, but let that pass. The point is that bob-hair is not new or origi-al with this age or moment, nor is the ath it excites without precedent.
As far back as 250 years ago, we learn
m a letter written by John Chamberlain
London—John was some writer in his day the women of England went on such a ort-hair debauch as to reduce "their men ks, and even royalty," to a state that was most frantic." Indeed, the indignant and raged king ordered the bishop of London to call his clergy together "to inveigh vehemently against the insolencies of our women,

and they're wearing of brode brimed hats, pointed dublets, they're hair cut short or shorne." In addition and significantly, the king gave it out straight that, "if pulpit admonitions will not reform them, I will proceed by another course."

Mr. Chamberlain was so sadly impressed by the conduct of the clipped women that he closed his lugubrious letter with this comment on the situation and the king's order:
"The truth is, the world is very much out of order, but whether this well mende it God Knowes."

That, mind you, was 250 years ago—in 1680 to be exact—and here we are again and with no king to interfere. The world then a days, as it had been from the moment Adam and Eve violated the law of domicile, was galloping toward the devil despite the efforts of its disturbed royalty and fanatic men. Today, short-sighted, short-changed and short-haired, it is doing the same thing again, or yet, according to those who claim to know. Always, always head for the devil. And what "will mende it God knowes."

FIRE.

Smokers' matches start more fires than anything else, insurance company finds by check-up. Spontaneous combustion ranks second—be careful not to leave oily rags where they can ignite and cause fires.

Third on the list of fire causes—defective flues and chimneys. Fifth is electricity.
Lightning is sixth, with sparks falling on roofs a close seventh. Another common fire origin—hot ashes. These are the things to watch. Tell the children.

FISH.

The gravest peril to our food supply is our vanishing coast fisheries, Secretary Hoover warns. The oyster and crab catches in the Atlantic are only a half of what they used to be. The same inroad has been made on Pacific salmon.

This country increasingly will have to rely more on its fisheries. The oceans should be restocked and fish protected as scientifically and thoroughly as we now farm our soil.

BRIDE.

Massachusetts man married a pretty waitress. In the following year she purchased two new suits a week—104 in the year. This comes out of the divorce hearing.

Apparently this bride gratified a long suppressed desire for fine feathers. We all have some such desire. But few are ever able to gratify the yearning, as did this ex-waitress.
She was Cinderella, though only for a year.
Now she has the memories—and the gowns.

SOUTH.

Southern states have a big building boom —half again as much as a year ago. No other section shows such an increase. A great period of construction and prosperity lies ahead for the south. Watch southern cities grow. Lack of industrial power and marketing organizations—these are the south's handicaps, but they'll be overcome.

TOM SIMS SAYS

Brevity may be the soul of wit, but there is nothing funny about being short of sleep.

Opportunity passes by quicker than a high-powered auto.

A dollar isn't half as hard to keep as two dollars.

All of the people who went for a vacation didn't get one.

You can't uplift people by stepping on their necks.

You hear as many people laughing in small houses as you do in big ones.

The trouble with taking your own time is you never have any left over.

Money talks, but not until it grows up.

Little money, it seems, like small children, should be seen but not heard.

Two many flies get through the summer
without being swatted.

A married man's things are never left in the middle of the floor, where he can find them.

Many new shaving compounds are improving men's complexions, but they still have the most beautiful ones on their coat lapels.

body's idea of a bad time.

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS
by Olive Roberts Barton

NO. 18—THE BOTTOM OF THE SEA

"How d' do!" said Captain Pennywinkle riding up on his sea horse.

The Dream Maker Man and the Sand Man and the Moon were waiting for the Twins to come back from the star called Jupiter at the other end of the Milky Way.

"Pretty soon they heard the night mare's hoofs going club-a-lub, club-a-lub, club-a-lub.

And in about two minutes the Twins arrived.

"Do hurry!" cried the Moon Man.
"I've got a cramp in my foot trying to hold the moon back."

"Did you get the sleepy sand?"
called the Sand Man anxiously.

"Yes!" said Nick holding up the sack.

"Hooray! Little owls and batlets!"
exclaimed the Sand Man doing a back somersault in his delight. "You are not a minute too soon! It's moonlight on the earth this second. Hear that sound? It's the kiddies yawning."

Nick gave the Sand Man the bag of sleepy sand and the Sand Man threw it over his shoulder.

"Good-bye Mister Moon Man," he said. "I'm ever so much obliged for holding the moon back. Good-bye, Mister Dream Maker Man. I'm ever so much obliged to you and your three sons for your help. Good-bye, Snoodle, Snuggle and Snore."

"Good-bye!" said Nancy and Nick to everybody on the moon.

With that all three of them hopped on a comet that happened to be passing and started for the earth.

But alas! Something more was about to happen. Troubles were not over.

When they jumped off the comet onto a mountain peak, the Sand Man lost his hold on the bag and the first thing they knew it went rolling bumpy bumpy, bump down the shore.

HARRIS STRATEGY BETTER THAN THAT OF 'MASTER MIND'

And That Tells Story of Washington's Winning of World Title.

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Washington, Oct. 11.—Baseball's Trojan war is over; and Washington celebrated far into the night.

Aimless, contented, joyous—even beautiful was the service of thanksgiving which the city, in the greatest demonstration since the signing of the armistice, tendered to its heroes, for Washington believes in its gods.

It was to humble them, these fans will say, that Walter Johnson was twice humbled; then they raised up their eyes to see him come with a flaming sword of vengeance.

Washington will say that, or any part of it, while the aromatic spirit of delirium still encircles its brain. And Washington believes in its gods, certain that none but gods could conceive, create and produce such a drama as brought the world's championship to Washington and Walter after twelve innings of the seventh game by a score of 4 to 3.

Harris' Strategy Won.
As the Greeks entered Troy by strategy so did "Bucky" Harris penetrate the defense of the Giants; the youngest manager in the big league threw down the gauntlet of chicory to John McGraw, known as "The Little Napoleon." With strategy the battle was fought; and because of it, not only became the greatest contest in the history of the sport, but possibly elevated the game itself to a new level.

It was fought with the President of the country and many of the nation's prominent men in the foreground; the background was a map of villages and cities connected with the Griffith Stadium by radio and telegraph wires.

He Outguessed McGraw.
When "Bucky" Harris started O'Gden a comparative unknown, and then took him from the box after he had pitched to only two men, the people in Pittston, Pa., were certain that their home town boy had "put one over" on the master mind by forcing McGraw to start his left handed batters and then to either use them against Mordridge, a southpaw, or by taking them from the lineup, to eliminate them from use as pinch hitters or as batters against right handed Marberry if the latter relieved Mordridge.

Out in Circleville, Kas., they knew that young Virgil Barnes was pitching a good game; that a home run by Harris in the fourth inning had not only been the only hit allowed by their boy in the six innings but that the young Washington manager was the only man who had reached first base in that time.

In South Bend, Ind., and Bellair, Ohio, and San Diego, Calif., they knew all of this and more; in Washington at Griffith Stadium, the appreciated several fine stops made by Bluege, playing at short stop in place of the injured Peckinpaugh.

Senators Cracked Open.
Then, in the sixth, they saw the Senators crack wide open while the alert Giants drove three runs through the breach.

Young walked and Kelly singled, sending Young to third. Harris sent Mordridge out and brought in Marberry, the relief pitcher who had already saved two games. Meusel scored Young with a sacrifice fly. Then came the lapse. Wilson sent a slow thing over second with either Harris or Bluege might have knocked down it seemed. Kelly went to third and scored when Judge muffed Jackson's tap. Gowdy drove on through Bluege's legs and Wilson tallied.

Barnes went on with his same steady pace. When Bluege fouled out in the eighth the Giants cries of triumph sounded high above the crowd buzzing. Then Liebold went in to hit for Taylor and drove a two base clout just beyond Lindstrom. Ruel made his first safety hit of the series and Tate, batting for Marberry, was passed filling the sacks. McNeely flew to Wilson. Harris hit toward Lindstrom. The ball bounced over his head and Washington had tied the score. The Gods must have chuckled when they tossed Walter Johnson into the fray then. The latter, of all the Giants was Lindstrom who had relentlessly driven the veteran to seeming oblivion with four hits at the Polo Grounds. Walter made him pop out. Frisch hit a triple to deep center.

Made Kelly Look Bad.
Johnson deliberately passed Young and struck out George Kelly. In the next inning he struck out Jackson. In the eleventh, Heinie Groh singled. Southworth ran for him and went to second on Lindstrom's sacrifice. Again Johnson deliberately passed Young; again whiffed Kelly. The gods were pulling the strings for Walter, who worked like one of them in the box.

The battle of wits had gone on. Neft went in for Barnes after Harris drove in the tying runs in the eighth. In the ninth McQuillan replaced Neft after an error by Jackson gave the Senators a chance. McGraw was not only shifting pitchers to meet individual batters but Young and Meusel exchanged places in the outfield so Young could follow the sun.

In the twelfth Bentley was in the box. With one down Ruel, the Washington batting "bust" exploded in the Giant's face with a two bagger. Johnson went to first on Jackson's error. McNeely bounced a ball at Lindstrom.

Then the gods decided to end it. McNeely's ball took the same miraculous bounce as did Harris' almost in the same place, and Ruel scored the winning run. Meusel made no attempt to catch him at the plate.

Then Washington went wild. When the end will come, nobody knows. But the last fan to leave the park said to Clark Griffith: "We'll be back for the first game next year."

Epinard Faces Real Test this Afternoon
By Associated Press Leased Wire

Latonia, Ky., Oct. 11.—Epinard turf champion of France, faces the supreme test of his American invasion today when he meets the pick of this nation's thoroughbreds in the third and final series of international races. The vent at a mile and a quarter with $50,000 added, will be run over the Latonia course with the prospects of 50,000 attendance, the greatest throng that ever witnessed a horse race here.

The famous French horse, twice defeated in America, will meet a field of nine—at least nine other starters have been nominated although two or three probably will be scratched. By a strategic twist of fate, the two horses which defeated Epinard in his previous starts, probably will be among the missing when the bugle sounds.

Belgian Billiard Star in Great Form at Elks Club.

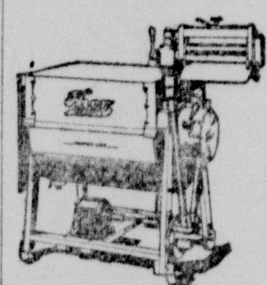

Edouard Horemans, Belgian champion billiardist, ran 289 in the third inning of an exhibition contest against Jacinto Vargas Uruguay, champion of South America, at the local Elks club last evening. The two champions furnished the entertainment provided for the annual out-of-town members and a good sized crowd watched the match.

Horemans opened up and missed, then made two short runs of six and five, when he settled down and made his high run of 289 which won for him the match of 18-2 ball line, playing 300 points. The Belgian champion was going good and appeared to be in good shape for one of his big runs. Vargas missed his first shot, then clipped off 36 and 13 in the following innings.

The Belgian champion also defeated his South American opponent at an exhibition of three cushion. Neither

Newspapers Strongest Allies Humane Effort

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Toronto, Oct. 11.—Leopold L. Wilder, of Albany, N. Y., managing editor of the National Humane Review, said here today before the 48th annual convention of the American Humane Association, that the daily newspaper is one of the strongest allies of the humane movement.

"Not long ago," said Wilder, "the president of the humane society in a western city asked the public through the columns of a newspaper to give homes to several dogs that would have to be destroyed otherwise, although there was nothing the matter with them. Within a few hours of publication of the story, not only had every last dog been disposed of, but the society had a waiting list of persons who asked to be notified when there were more dogs in need of a home."

CHAPTER XXXII
THE JUDGES

In the absence of any woman into whose care they might entrust her, Lord Henry, Sir John and Master Tobias, the ship's surgeon, had, amongst them, tended Rosamund as best they could when, numbed and half dazed, she was brought aboard the Silver Heron.

Master Tobias had applied such rude restoratives as he commanded, and, having made her as comfortable as possible upon a couch in the spacious cabin astern, he had suggested that she should be allowed the rest of which she appeared so sorely to stand in need. He had ushered out the command and the queen's lieutenant, and himself had gone below to a still more urgent case that was demanding his attention: that of Lionel Tressilian, who had been brought aboard and unconscious from the gale that had blown from the sea. He had been with some four other wounded members of the Silver Heron's crew.

At dawn Sir John had come below, looking down at his wounded friend. He found the surgeon kneeling over Lionel. As he entered, Master Tobias turned and, placing his hands in a metal basin placed upon the floor and rose, wiping them on a napkin.

"Can do no more, Sir John," he murmured in a despondent voice.

"Dead, I've meant," cried Sir John, a catch in his voice.

The surgeon looked aside the cabin, and slowly drew down the lowered ladder of his black doublet.

"All but dead," he answered.

"The wounds that any spark of life should still linger in a body, with that hole in it," he said, still looking toward him, and his fingers, still working, "it must seem, then, so terrible, imperceptibly, the pain away. You may count him dead already, Sir John," he said.

"A merciful, painless end," he added, and, still, perfunctorily, his pale, shadowy face, decently grimed, looked at each woman as they were commonplace in this life.

"Of the other four," he continued, "Lionel is dead; the other three are still recovering."

But Sir John gave little heed to the matter of those others. His grief and dismay, at this quenching of all hope for his friend, precluded any other consideration at the moment.

"And he will not even recover consciousness?" he asked, insisting, although already he had been answered.

"As I have said, you may count him dead already, Sir John. My skill can do nothing for him."

Sir John's head drooped, his countenance drew a grimace.

"For can my justice," he added gloomily. "Though it avenges him, it cannot give me back my friend."

He looked at the surgeon.

"Vengeance, sir, is the hollowest of all the lockeries that go to make up life."

"Your task, Sir John," replied the surgeon, "is one of justice, not vengeance."

"A quibble, when all is said."

He stepped to Lionel's side, and looked down at the pale, shadowed face, which the dark shadows of death were already creeping.

"If the world but speak in the interests of this justice that is to do, if we might but have the evidence of his own words, lost I should ever be asked to justify the hanging of Oliver Tressilian."

"Surely, sir," the surgeon ventured, "there can be no such question ever. Mistress Rosamund's word alone should suffice, if indeed so much as that even were required."

"Ah! His offenses against God and man are too notorious to leave grounds upon which any should question my right to deal with him out of hand."

There was a tap at the door and Sir John's own body-servant entered with the announcement that Mistress Rosamund was asking urgently to see him.

"She will be impatient for news of him," Sir John concluded, and he groaned. "My God! How am I to tell her? To crush her in the very hour of her deliverance with such news as this! Was ever irony so cruel?"

He turned, and stepped heavily to the door. There he paused.

"You will remain by him to the end?" he bade the surgeon interrogatively.

Master Tobias bowed.

"Of course, Sir John." And he added, "I will not be long."

Sir John looked across at Lionel again—a glance of valediction.

"God rest him!" he said, hoarsely, and passed out.

It was in the waist he passed, turned to a knot of lounging seamen, and bade them throw a halter over the yard-arm, and hale the renegade Oliver Tressilian from his prison. Then with slow heavy step and heavier heart he went up the companion to the vessel's castled poop.

The sun, new risen in a faint golden haze, shone over a sea faintly rippled by the fresh clean winds of dawn to which their every stitch of canvas was now spread. Away on the harbor quarter, a faint cloudy outline, was the coast of Spain.

Sir John's long shadowy face was preternaturally grave when he entered the cabin, where Rosamund awaited him. He bowed to her with a grave courtesy, doffing his hat and casting it upon a chair. The last five years had brought some strands of white into his thick black hair, and at the temples, in particular, it showed very gray, giving him an appearance of age to which the deep lines in his brow contributed.

He advanced towards her, as she rose to receive him.

"Rosamund, my dear!" he said gently, and took both her hands. He looked with eyes of sorrow and concern into her white, agitated face. "Are you sufficiently rested, child?"

"Restful?" she echoed on a note of wonder that he should suppose it.

"Poor lamb, poor lamb!" he murmured, as a mother might have done, and drew her towards him, stroking that gleaming auburn child.

"We'll speed us back to England with every stitch of canvas spread. Take heart, then, and—"

But she broke in impetuously, drawing away from him as she spoke, and his heart sank with foreboding of the thing she was about to inquire.

"I overheard a sailor just now saying to another that it is your intention to hang Sir Oliver Tressilian this morning."

He misunderstood her utterly.

"Be comforted," he said. "My justice shall be swift; my vengeance, assured. The yard-arm is charged already with the rope on which he shall leap to his eternal punishment."

"She caught her breath, and set a hand upon her bosom as if it were its sudden tumult.

"And upon what grounds," she asked him with an air of challenge, "do you intend to do this thing?"

"Upon what grounds?" she faltered.

He stared and frowned, bewildered by her question and its tone.

"Upon what grounds?" he repeated, foolishly almost in the intensity of his amazement.

Then he considered her more closely, and the wildness of her eyes bore to him slowly an explanation of words that at first had seemed beyond explaining.

"I see!" he said in a voice of infinite pity; for the conviction that he had leaped was that her poor wits were all astray after the horrors through which she had lately traveled.

"You must rest," he said gently, and gave no thought to such matters as these. Leave them to me, and be very sure that I shall avenge you as this due."

"Sir John, you mistake me, I think. I do not desire that you avenge me. I have asked you upon what grounds you intend to do this thing, and you have not answered me."

In increasing amazement he continued to stare. He had been wrong, then. She was quite sane and mistress of her wits. And yet instead of the fond inquiries concerning Lionel which he had been dreading came this amazing questioning of his grounds to hang his prisoner.

"Need I state to you—of all living folk—the offenses which that dastard has committed?" he asked, expressing thus the very question that he was setting himself.

"You need to tell me," she answered, "by what right you constitute yourself his judge and executioner; by what right you send him to his death in this peremptory fashion, without trial."

Her manner was as stern as if she were invested with all the authority of a judge.

"But you," he faltered in his ever-growing bewilderment, "you, Rosamund, against whom he has offended so grievously, surely you should be the last to ask me such a question! Why, it is my intention to proceed with him as is the manner of the sea with all knaves taken as Oliver Tressilian was taken. If your mood be merciful towards him—which, as God lives, I can scarce conceive—consider that this is the greatest mercy he can look for."

"You speak of mercy and vengeance in a breath, Sir John." She was growing calm, her agitation was quieting and a grim sternness was replacing it.

He made a gesture of impatience.

"What good purpose could it serve to take him to England?" he demanded. "There he must stand his trial, and the issue is foregone. It were unnecessary to torture him."

"The issue may be none so foregone as you suppose," she replied. "And that trial is his right."

Working Conditions As Well As Income Of American Women Are Best In World

HOWEVER, THE REPUBLICAN PARTY, NOTABLY ITS WOMEN WORKERS, IS PLANNING STILL GREATER STRIDES TO CARRY OUT PLEDGE

This is the first of a series of five articles by Mrs. Alvin T. Helt, vice-chairman of the Republican National Committee, and chairman of the Women's Division of that committee. Mrs. Helt discusses what she considers vital campaign issues from the woman's standpoint.

BY MRS. ALVIN T. HELT

Mrs. Alvin T. Helt

The women of the United States work at higher wages and under better conditions than do women anywhere else in the world. But our government is not satisfied merely with providing better conditions than any other country for its women workers. It is working constantly to improve these conditions.

President Coolidge struck deep into the heart of American ideals when he said: "Childhood and motherhood cherished, honored, rescued from the grasp of all selfishness and rededicated to the noblest aspirations of the race, are the mark of the advancing American civilization which it is our solemn duty to maintain."

Two million married women are in industry in this country to-day. The majority of these women are actual bread-winners. In a study made of one factory town by the Women's Bureau of the Department of Labor it was found that 72 per cent of the bread-winning women had children and that three-fourths of these women had children who were less than six years old. A home study of 500 of these wage-earning mothers showed that about one-fifth were toiling at night and looking after their children during the day. Studies of the Women's Bureau have revealed that some types of married women in industry gain far more than they lose by going into industry while others, particularly the night working mothers and mothers of little children whose tired mothers cannot give them the proper care, lose immeasurably more.

The Republican party took this vital fact into consideration in its national platform. According to this platform, "there is no success great enough to justify the employment of women in labor under conditions which will impair their natural functions."

American workers have always profited from Republican control of government. This great political party has written the most glorious chapter in the history of American industry in the form of legislation protecting women and children, who had been forced to toil for long hours at meager pay.

The bill creating the Women's Bureau which promotes the welfare of the 8,500,000 wage-earning women of this country, was introduced by Representative Campbell, Republican, of Kansas, and Senator Kenyon, Republican, of Iowa, and was passed by a Republican House and Senate. And the Republican party did much more than create the Bureau. By increasing the appropriations for the Bureau, it has enabled the Bureau to enlarge its activities and thus be of greater service to the womanhood of this country.

The Women's Bureau endeavors constantly to improve conditions under which women work. It bends its efforts to provide seats in industrial establishments where women workers will not have to stand on their feet for hours at a time; to provide rest rooms, drinking facilities with good water, proper ventilation and sanitation; it guards women employees against dangerous machinery and works to secure proper fire protection and adequate fire escapes.

Motherhood should be honored, childhood protected," said President Coolidge in his inaugural address as governor of Massachusetts in urging the establishment of maternity aid in Massachusetts. President Coolidge has long been an advocate of mothers' pension laws and other laws to aid mothers. The Maternity and Infancy Act, which has been characterized as the "greatest welfare measure of the past decade" was passed by the Sixty-seventh Congress in 1921. President Harding urged the enactment of this law in his first message to the special session of Congress, called in that year. This Congress was in the control of the Republican party.

Massachusetts, the home state of President Coolidge, is one of the five states limiting the hours of labor for women to 43 a week. As governor of Massachusetts he urged the passage of such a law.

The record of the two great parties in state legislation for the protection of womanhood shows that the rule in the regularly Democratic states is long hours, while the rule in the normally Republican states is liberal hours of labor. It shows that twelve states compel one day's rest in seven and that of these twelve, eleven are normally Republican states. It shows that of fifteen states which have laws regulating the work of women at night, fourteen are Republican. It shows that of the twelve states which have minimum laws for women, eleven are Republican. It shows that only six states in the Union do not provide mothers' pensions and that five of these are regularly Democratic.

Laws for safeguarding women in industry are vital to the home life of this country, yet no women, even the poorest of women toilers, place such laws first. Laws for safeguarding children rank infinitely higher in the hearts of American women. And in such laws the Republican party has been a pioneer.

The first national conference on child welfare was called by President Roosevelt in 1909, and acting upon the recommendations of that conference, the Republican Congress under President Taft's administration established the Children's Bureau. The Democrats opposed its creation. Later the Republicans in Congress saved the Bureau's life by making a fight for appropriations adequate to keep it alive. The Republican party was the pioneer in the work for the enactment of a federal child labor law and it is now leading the fight for the ratification of an amendment to the United States Constitution which will give Congress the power to legislate on child labor.

President Coolidge has said: "The welfare of the weakest and the strongest are inseparable." The Republican party has led the fight to make America safe for children. It has led the fight to protect motherhood so that mothers may be able to give the best of themselves to their children.

Press Ass'n Discusses Community Newspapers
Champaign, Ill., Oct. 10.—(By the Associated Press)—Community newspapers and their advantages through which the needs and advantages of the community are clearly seen, J. M. Johnson, professor of journalism of the University of Wisconsin, told members of the Illinois Press Association at the annual convention of the editors here today.

Reviewing the changes that have occurred in community journalism during the past ten years, including the large number of "newspaper deaths and mergers," Mr. Johnson said that the community paper of today is in a precarious position, unless it can find a field of service in which it is supreme.

"Local news and local features are the fields in which the community paper can offer a distinct service, which the metropolitan paper cannot carry," Professor Johnson said. "The community paper, if it is to live, must deal in the thoughts of the community. It must be filled with the community, it must understand the community, and it must help the community. If it does this it is beyond the competition of the metropolitan paper."

"The opportunity of the community paper lies in directing attention away from the city. The editor of the small paper must make life in his own community more interesting. To be successful, he must have the background of the community, the genesis of things in the community well in mind. He must talk about the community, see the things that the community needs and direct attention to them, see the things in which the community excels and direct attention to them. In short, his is the task of interesting the community in itself. His paper is a lens as compared to that of the community can look in it, and see itself as it really is. If a community paper does this, it is assured of circulation, respect and success."

In Bath, England, water is still flowing through the lead pipes that were used in Roman times.

MOST every kiddie in the land
Would surely like to own
A lovely little pony that He'd learn to ride alone.
Of course they're little fellows but They're really rather strong.
You hop upon their backs and then
They travel right along.

AND here we have the kinkajou,
My, what a funny name.
Perhaps he'd like to play with you
If only he were tame.
He lives in South America
And climbs around in trees;
For food he steals the honey
From the busy little bees

THE ferret hails from Africa,
But now, we understand
That he is found in U.S.A.
And every other land.
He's quite a lively fellow,
And he always keeps in trim
To chase the rats and rabbits
Who are scared to death of him.

AND here's a hippopotamus,
That comes from lands afar,
And mainly from in Africa
Where mucky marshes are.
It lolls around and plays all day
As lazy as can be.
And when it opens up its mouth
It's quite a sight to see.

THE jackal lives in Africa.
Its habits are quite rude;
It follows caravans around
In search of scraps of food.
It's something like a common fox,
With hair of grayish yellow;
A-prowling round both day and night.
It's quite a sneaky fellow.

YOU'VE surely seen the little squirrel
A-hopping round the ground.
In parks and in the forests is
Where he is always found.
This creature with the bushy tail
Eats lots of acorns and
Sometimes he is just tame enough
To eat out of your hand.

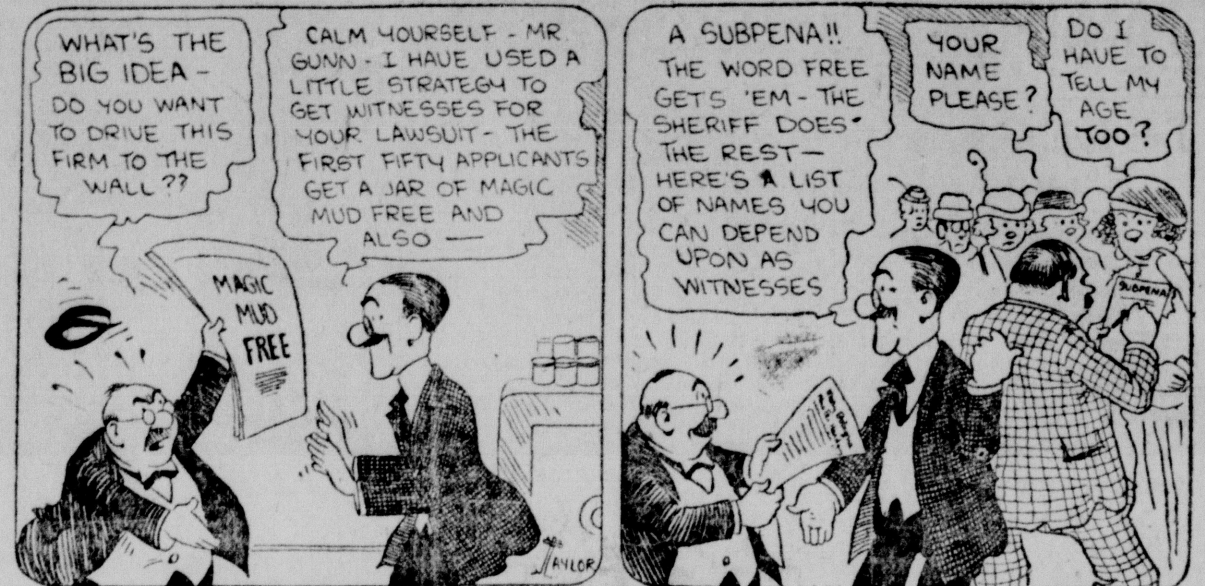

FROM Sweden and from Norway comes
The reindeer, so you've read.
He is a deer-like animal
With horns upon his head.
I know you've heard about him and
He's called around your way.
For he's the speedy fellow who Pulls ol' Kris Kringle's sleigh.

The WELL DRESSED MAN
By BEAUNASH
Correct Clothes To Meet The Obligation Of Every Occasion

Evening Neckdress

Granted that most Americans do not look with favor upon formal evening dress, popularly termed "full dress," the unbudging fact remains that there are certain occasions when nothing else may be correctly worn. For example, the man who is married of an evening in a Tuxedo suit shows complete ignorance of or indifference to a rule of good form which is recognized and observed the world wide by men who know what's what and what's not. Any ceremonious function after sundown, as distinguished from a semi-formal one, inflexibly prescribes "full dress," and you can't get away from it, even if you do get away with something else.

As a matter of fact, there is a clearly defined tendency this season to return to the swallowtail or clawhammer suit for wear upon those occasions when it is obligatory. To be sure, the tailed coat will never regain the popularity it once enjoyed, because the Tuxedo has become our National Evening Suit and nine men out of ten prefer it. Nevertheless, truth crushed to earth shall rise again, no matter who sits upon its chest, and "full dress" has a place and a purpose in the theme of etiquette from which no consideration of comfort and no whim of the wearer can dislodge it.

Two types of correct collars and ties to accompany formal evening clothes are reproduced here. The top one is the poke collar, a form that is still much worn in England, but seldom seen in this country. It is a good style for certain necks and casts of features, but it is not the most comfortable of collars and, thus, its vogue will always be restricted to men who dress after the manner of the old school—not a bad school, either. The second is the wing collar, the universal favorite. This should have rather large, bold tabs set straight, rather than at an angle. It should, also be of goodly height, as a low wing does not look well with evening dress. The ties are of two sorts—the butterfly bow having a tight knot and spreading, fan-shaped ends and the tie adjusted with a broad, straight effect.

LETTER FROM JOHN ALDEN
PRESCOTT TO SYDNEY CAR-
TON, CONTINUED

"But I know nothing about steel," I blurted out to my father-in-law when he wanted me to manage his business.

"But your firm has carried in two great advertising accounts for steel mills ever since the World War was ended," he asserted.

"Yes," I acquiesced.
"Who managed these campaigns?" I understood they have been very successful.

"I did," I answered rather proudly, for my work in these accounts had always been my greatest joy as well as success.

"Well, you know about steel then you must know about steel," my father-in-law said.

"My boy, I must have someone I can trust to care for the wealth I shall leave to Alice and the girls. I would not want to put a stranger in no matter how much he knew about the business in general. He must also know my wife and daughters who are a much greater responsibility than the business."

"I have a great regard for your business ability, John. I know you love and cherish Leslie, and because you love her you respect and regard her mother and sister." (I did not tell him I had no respect for Alice, Syd.) "I want you, John, to carry on for me. It is my dying request."

"But you have another son-in-law, Mr. Hamilton. Do you not want to give him a part of this great responsibility?"

"No, John, Karl is not a business man in any particular. Money and the things money will buy have been his since he was born. Indeed, his family have had money for five generations. He does not realize the value of a dollar except as something that pays for the luxuries of his daily life. He's entirely a different temperament from you. You could not get on with him at all."

"Don't think for a moment, John, that I do not appreciate Karl. He is one of the most splendid men I have ever known. In some ways he is much better than you. He just doesn't know anything about business. He is an idealist pure and simple. He lives in a world apart from the rush and worry which you have had to live in. I almost doubt if he could earn a living, because if he did earn any money he would give it all away."

"He is generous to a fault. His charities, both material and mental are stupendous. He never saves in the giving of himself or his money. I have never known a colossally rich man who did so much unselfish good, or who was so modest about his benefactions. He really is an ideal man of wealth—he should have wealth; but he is not, and never will be, and never could be a man of business."

"This is the reason, I have been a little worried about his marriage with my daughter. I am not sure what Alice will think about the amount he gives away annually; for you for you must know, John, that Alice is rather selfish and very extravagant. She also has many society ambitions. She is very different from Leslie, who is one of the most unselfish girls in the world. I am very glad that Alice does not need any of my money, and consequently will not be very much interested in its disposal."

The Affair at
Flower Acres
CAREY WELLS

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Malcolm Finley, returning from Japan, is invited to Flower Acres, the long island home of Douglas Raynor, husband of Nancy, who is his former sweetheart of Finley's. The discovery that Raynor is tyrannizing over Nancy and is incensed. Finley goes to Flower Acres with a friend, Ezra Goddard, and sees Nancy and Nancy's devoted brother, Orville Kent, and Raynor's sister, Miss Mattie. When the family are having their coffee and smoking in the sun parlor of the house after dinner, Finley fights a strong temptation to seat himself near his hostess. He has noticed at dinner, however, that his conversation with Nancy was intensely listened to by Raynor and Miss Mattie. The sun parlor is an "ideal room" with three sides and a roof of glass.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

Deeming it wise, therefore, he took a seat beside the maiden lady, a proceeding entirely to her satisfaction.

"You're one of Nancy's old beaux, aren't you?" she asked.

"Now, Miss Raynor," Finley said, gayly, "I object to that term old beau. It makes me feel like a somewhat decrepit but well-preserved man of sixty or so."

"Nonsense, you know I didn't mean anything like that. But weren't you one of her admirers?"

"Oh, yes—surely none but a blind man could plead not guilty to that charge! You're one yourself, aren't you? You admire her yourself, don't you?"

"Yes, except that I think she's overly slim for a matron."

Finley gave a brief glance at the slender, lissome form of his hostess, but looked away quickly, lest his eyes linger too long.

She sat in a swing, amid a cluster of cushions. Her small, dark head leaned back with a slight abandon, and her wistful little face was upturned to Goddard, who stood above and behind her. One black slipper-foot kept the swing swaying a trifle, and her outspread hands rested on the sides of the swing.

"Do stop that teetering, Nan," her husband said, pettishly.

"I will, Douglas," and the accompanying smile showed no trace of annoyance. She steadied the swing, and sat motionless, crossing her hands on her lap. Her gown was of plain black velvet, a trailing garland of fine French flowers its only ornament. She wore no jewels, save a string of pearls, and her small, delicate face, though pale, was bright and animated.

"Why have you so few decorations tonight, my dear?" Raynor went on, looking her over critically. "In honor of our returned traveler, you should have donned your bravest war paint."

"Beauty unadorned," Nan said, smiling, but Finley saw her hands clasp tightly, as if there were a disturbing undercurrent to her husband's remarks.

"Not your beauty," Raynor said. "You're too pale, my dear, to claim that your face is your fortune."

"Then tell me so when we're alone, Douglas. Personalities!"

"There she goes again! Always lecturing me on my manners! What would you do, Finley, if you had a wife that never stopped pestering you?"

"I'd let her pester," Malcolm said, and his cool voice gave no sign of the anger in his breast. "This, then, was the way Raynor was a brute."

"Yes—one has to," and Raynor sighed, over-emphatically. "I've given up trying to mend her ways, but it is tiresome to be caught up continually."

"Oh, I don't, Douglas. Don't be deceived by Malcolm, he's teasing me. And by the way, Douglas, how do you like the new rhododendron beds?"

"A fine question—considering you placed them exactly where I asked you not to! Why did you do that? To prove your independence of my wishes, or merely to be contrary?"

"But, Douglas dear, they're just where you said you wanted them!"

"Nothing of the sort. You mis-understood entirely. You would, of course, Oh, well, I can't expect to have anything as I want it around this place. With your knowledge of gardens and landscapes, Nan, I should think you could see for yourself that they should be 50 feet, at least, farther from the arbor."

"I'll have them changed," Nan spoke sulkily, listlessly, as if she would rather change the whole garden plan than have any further discussion.

"Yes, and spend a fortnight more of the gardeners' time! You've no conception of the value of time—or Mattie, "why did you have it? To please your guest?"

"Yes, to please Mr. Goddard," said Nan, bravely smiling.

"I don't wish to have anything on the table that my brother doesn't want there," the prim spinster declared.

They were rather alike, the brother and sister. Both were very thin, with thin gray hair and thin, high voices. They looked as if they were thin blooded, and though a thin veneer of culture showed on the surface, one gained the impression that beneath were very primitive and unbridled impulses.

Two years ago, when he married the lovely Nancy Kent, all the world wondered. Wondered how he ever persuaded such a dainty bit of femininity to link her life with his. He had been a friend of her father's, who had died since the marriage, and among scores of suitors it was hard to understand Nan's decision.

Miss Mattie, though, saw no cause for surprise. To her, her brother Douglas was the epitome of all that was worthwhile or desirable. And her query was what had Douglas seen in that pale-faced big-eyed child to make him want her. Curiosity being the lady's strong point, she set about to find out. Her quest was unsuccessful, but she did succeed in adding no negligible weight to the burden of discomfort the mistress of Flower Acres carried.

The next morning most of the household arose with a fixed and positive determination on at least one point.

Nancy Raynor vowed to herself that that not one word or glance of a personal or even friendly nature would she vouchsafe to Malcolm Finley. For she divined her husband was on the lookout for such and would exaggerate and distort their meaning to the discomfort of all concerned.

Ezra Goddard vowed to himself that he would drop another hint, a strong one, to Finley on the advisability of keeping away from his hostess.

Miss Mattie vowed to herself she would find out the true state of affairs between Nan and Mr. Finley, and if she could find the least thing to report she would hasten to her brother with the matter.

Orville Kent concluded that Nan was doing wrong, and he must consider carefully whether to speak to her on the subject or not.

Eva Turner promised herself to be more careful in the matter of her employer's diet.

And Malcolm Finley solemnly and roundly swore to himself that he would stop, look and listen a little further, and then, if he was satisfied that that old curmudgeon was really mistreating that darling girl, he, Finley, would settle the said curmudgeon's hash—in one way or another!

Finley would not see the members of the family until luncheon time, unless by chance. And, having seen Nan out among the gardens, he concluded to make his own chance.

"Yes, Nancy," chimed in Miss

LITERARY DIGEST POLL CONTINUES TO FAVOR G. O. P.

Has Lead of Half Million
Out of Million and Half Votes.

A larger vote for President Coolidge than for all other candidates combined, and a larger vote for LaFollette than for Davis, are the two outstanding features of the fourth week's tabulation of the gigantic straw poll of The Literary Digest which is out today.

Of the nearly million and a half votes recorded, Coolidge has 808,340, LaFollette 351,178 and Davis 275,674. Returns have now been received from forty-two states but the Digest calls attention to the fact that the Southern States have been tardy in returning their ballots. Their returns will swell the Davis vote to a higher figure.

Davis is now leading in nine States and LaFollette is still carrying Wisconsin against both of his opponents. The Progressive candidate is running second in twenty-one States and Davis is trailing the leader in twelve.

All previous records for the fourth week of a national poll are broken by the present tabulation of 1,451,591 votes. The Digest states, passing the previous high mark for this stage of any poll by more than 200,000.

"The returns indicate that interest in the election is increasing daily," The Digest continues, "and it may be safely predicted that, at its completion, the present poll will stand forth, by hundreds of thousands of votes as the largest and most representative test of public opinion ever attempted in this country."

The Digest states "It must, of course, be borne in mind that the present poll is vastly greater than the 1920 poll of 600,000 ballots, distributed in six States, which accurately predicted Mr. Harding's election by an overwhelming majority. Ordinarily, the greater the poll, the more accurate it becomes."

"Taking up the small poll of 1920 and comparing it with the strength of the Republican candidate as shown in the election, the following results are shown:

State	Harding's Popular Vote	Per cent of Total Popular Vote	Harding's Vote in Digest Poll	Per cent of Total Digest Poll
N. Y.	1,571,167	64.67	21,144	76.55
N. J.	615,353	67.72	22,544	79.13
Ohio	1,182,022	58.53	17,915	71.08
Ind.	696,370	55.16	16,201	63.98
Ill.	1,420,480	67.56	17,891	77.22
Calif.	624,992	66.24	16,759	71.56
The 1920 Digest poll, therefore, showed the following margin of percentages in favor of Mr. Harding over the popular vote recorded in these six states for Mr. Cox:
New York	12.18
New Jersey	11.41
Ohio	12.65
Indiana	8.82

SPEAKS IN DIXON MONDAY EVE

JUDGE NORMAN L. JONES

Judge Jones, Democratic candidate for Governor, who will address a meeting of voters at the Dixon Theater at 8 o'clock Monday evening, was born September 12, 1879, at Patterson, Illinois, where both his father and mother were raised, his father also having been born at that place. His parents are now residing at Roodhouse in Greene County.

He was educated at the Carrollton High School, Indiana State Normal and West Point Military Academy, and was admitted to practice law in 1896.

He served two terms in the Illinois Legislature, having been first elected at the age of twenty-one years. He has been City Attorney of Carrollton, and State's Attorney of Greene County. He is now Circuit Judge of the Seventh Judicial Circuit and one of the Judges of the Appellate Court of the Second District of Illinois. He has served as a member of the Board of Education in his home city, and a member of the Public Library Board.

"The average percentage for the six States favored the Republican candidate by about 10 per cent. more than he received on election day. It was also shown by comparison of The Digest's 1920 poll with the 1920 popular vote, that The Digest poll was approximately 10 per cent. under the popular vote recorded in these six states for Mr. Cox.

"Assuming that the present far more representative poll may show an equal percentage of error, which may or may not be the case, it may be interesting to apply these percentages to some of the states where close

So modified, The Digest's present vote would stand 64,424 for Mr. Coolidge to Mr. LaFollette's 60,713. It would appear, therefore, that even allowing for the full measure of error shown by the previous poll as cited by Mr. Sinclair, Mr. LaFollette's strength is not quite equal to Mr. Coolidge's.

"The Digest is merely furnishing the straws in this case as in the case of other states, and every partisan is welcome to do his own figuring. On the other hand, it must be emphasized that the present poll is far more inclusive than was the one on which Mr. Sinclair bases his argument, and that the percentage of error may be considerably less—or even reversed.

"The application of the same argument from the 1920 poll to another close state, West Virginia, would give Mr. Davis a majority there, changing the present figures from 13,353 for Coolidge and 10,656 for Davis to 12,627 for the President, and 12,302 for the Democratic nominee. California and West Virginia are the only two states, it appears in which a change would be effected by figuring in the percentage of error shown in the 1920 poll."

America's Master Magician

When I watched Eusapia Palladino, the late Italian medium, cause a table to rise a foot in the air, I detected her using her right foot, under cover of her dress as a pivot on which to rest the leg of the table. By placing her hand on the top of the table and drawing it toward her, she caused the table to go up in the air.

This method was resorted to several times before she placed herself in what she termed a "trance," and produced the phenomenon of causing the table to actually rest in air without contact.

Another article of this series will appear tomorrow.

New York—Applicants for burglary and hold-up insurance in New York are investigated as vigorously as men suspected of committing such crimes.

There have been so many hold-ups and burglaries, considered fakes but unprovable as such, that insurance men are locking the doors of their premium stables before policy holders have a chance to steal the horse.

Five years ago insurance agents were hungry for such business. To day they sit at their desks and "take under consideration" all prospective clients.

I was surprised when a prominent jeweler detailed to me a list of notables who would not be insured against burglary and hold-ups. It was astonishing. All of them are presumed to be immensely wealthy and many high in social regard.

Yet it was inferred that they would stoop to any level to gather in premiums.

When one insurance company finds a client a poor risk for one reason or other, the information is passed on to all other companies through a channel organization formed to protect these companies against illegitimate loss.

Padding claims is a common offense of the insured, it is claimed. Two hundred dollars is often stretched to a loss of $2000 by dishonest premium holders.

In many instances when an apartment house in a neighborhood is burglarized, insurance clients throughout the section, file a claim. It is practically impossible for the insurance investigator to disprove the claim, though in many instances it is unquestionably false.
